

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

catch words in heavy type, so that the reader can easily find and carefully follow that portion of the subject which he desires to examine. The citations seem to be peculiarly fortunate in their directness and the work is at the same time clear and concise.

The Lawyers' Reports Annotated. New Series. Book 17. Burdett A. Rich, Henry P. Farnham, Editors. 1909. Rochester, N. Y., The Lawyers' Co-Operative Publishing Company. Price $4.00.

The Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia in the case of Willis v. Kalmbach, decided March 18th, 1909, pays quite a compliment to the series of L. R. A. when they say: "We have freely used the notes to cases in Lawyers Reports Annotated and cheerfully acknowledge our obligation." This reference to the very full and complete annotations upon the important question involved in that case—i. e., the constitutionality of the so-called "Ward Law," renders the examination of Volume 17 an interesting task. We find in this volume the same care in selection and annotation which characterizes the preceding volumes. The notes upon "Way of necessity where other possible modes of access exist," "Liability of railway or street railway for assault by employee on passenger outside of car or train," "Criticism of decision or opinion after case has been determined, as contempt or ground for disbarment," "Married woman as surety," are amongst the many other interesting questions discussed at length.